Don't Stop My Paper.

Don't stop my paper, printer.
Don't strike my name off yet;
You know the times are stringent,
And money hard to get;
But tug a little harder
Is what I mean to do,
And scrape the dimes to gether,
Enough for me and you.

I can't afford to drop it;
I find it doesn't pay
To do without a paper,
However others may.
I hate to ask my neighbors
To give me theirs on loan;
They don't just say, but mean it,
Why don't you have your own?
You cannot tell how we'd miss it,
If it, by any fate,
Should happen not to reach us,
Or come a little late;
Then all is in a hubbub,
And things go all awry.
And, printer, if you're married,
You know the reason why.

I cannot do without it,
It is no use to try,
For other people take it,
And printer, so must I.
I too, must keep posted,
And know what is going on
Or feel, and be accounted
A foggy simpleton.

Then take it kindly, printer.
If pay be somewhat slow,
For cash is not so plenty,
And I want not few, you know.
But I must have my paper,
Cost what it may to me,
I'd rather dock my sugar,
And do without my tea.

So printer don't you stop it,
Unless you want my frown,
For here's the years subscription,
And credit it right down;
And send the paper promptly
And regularly on,
Bringing us semi-monthly
Its welcome benison.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, March 1, 1880.

ED. SENTINEL:—Winter is gone without having giving us even a smattering of its usual frigidity. Its closing reminded us of sunny May days, leaving out the green foliage and the laughing drapery of flowers. Such a Winter has no place in the memory of the oldest resident. It has been a period of unexampled gaiety. Thousands of the wealthy and cultured from all parts of our land have spent these pleasant months amid scenes of pleasure in levees, receptions and art entertainments. Year by year this Paris of America is more and more becoming an art centre and is attracting to it the most refined and cultured minds in the country. The revival in business has been very sensibly felt here and hundreds of palatial residences of new residents now building speaks well for the future of our beautiful capital.

It must not be forgotten that the present Democratic House and Senate are to make the Presidential count, and what with their practical experience in addition, substruction and multiplication in making up election returns in the Southern States, in Maine and elsewhere, with Tilden to manage returning boards and arrange the elpher dispatches, it is to be no easy matter to inaugurate a Republican President, however large a majority he may receive on election day. It may be difficult for a camel to go through the eye of a needle but all things are possible that promise success to the Democratic party in the coming contest.

Civil Service orders promulgated in the morning hours of the present Administration are now toned down and greatly softened by the influence of the evening shadows that begin to fall on its fading existence, and clerks and officers of the Government sit under their vine and fig tree, with none to molest them in their preferences as to who should be the stand rd bearer No. 1, like Rip Van Winkle's drinks in the play "don't count this time."

The result the of convention in New York is considered as a barren victory for Grant and gives confidence to the friends of Blaine.

Many now living remember that pledges and instructions of delegations cut a very small figure in opposition to the vox populi in 1880. State conventions instructed delegates in a most solemn manner to vote first, last and always for W. H. Seward, but an all wise Providence broke the caucus slate, blasted the schemes of politicians and saved the nation by his own chosen leader, the immortal Lincoln. The friends of Blaine throughout the whole country are stalwarts of the party who have fought its battles and won its victories in the past, even when the vascilating and weak kneed ones were crying defeat, and it is this true and tired army that must again step into the breach and under their gallant standard-bearer must rest not day or night until victory perches on the Republican banner.

The selection of Cincinnati as the place to hold the Democratic convention was an illustration of the Darwinian theory of the "survival of the fittest" as applied to political maneuvering. Cincinnati has the largest distilleries in the country and the real power or corn whiskey and Bourbon Democracy mixed has never yet been fairly tested.

The friends of Samuel J. are now at work and the Literary Bureau in Gramercy Park has opened out broader than ever with its crops of clerks and correspondents. No stone is to be left unturned and Tilden's "bar" is to be tapped at both ends if it is necessary. He affirms that he can beat any republican candidate that may be put in nomination at Chicago, and that his experience in the last campaign taught him many things that will ensure to his advantage and success in the contest this year. The game is to be played this time with a desperation that will warrant the use of any means to set him in the Presidential chair, and give the Democratic party an opportunity to perpetuate its power through the indefinite future by arranging the new apportionment under the census of 1880.

The outcropping of the socialistic element in different places, manifested in strikes, is an evil omen, and is awakening in reflecting minds great cause of alarm for the permanency of our free institutions. A few years since the tramp question was one that menaced the peace of society, but wisdom on the part of law makers in the different States has banished the evil and settled the tramp question. The same action must sooner or later be taken by State Legislatures and stringent laws must be enacted against those who incite or are instrumental in creating strikes. Agitators like Kearney and all his kith and kin should be summarily dealt with. No man should be allowed to interfere with any other's right to work, any more than with his right to worship God or to possess, hold and occupy his property.

The Kennel.

Perhaps the highest mark that has ever been offered for a dog in this country has been made for one of Miss Marie Wellesly's Leonberg dogs. We are permitted to copy the following letter from Wm. F. Cody to that lady.

MY DEAR MADAM:—As I am anxious to purchase your Leonberg pup, I make the following offer: $3,000 for Sultan or $5,000 for both.

W. F. CODY, (Buffalo Bill)
We learn that it is the desire of Wm. F. Cody to send these dogs to his cattle range up on the Dis-mal River, Nebraska.

Sultan, the dog for which $3,000 is offered, is the finest specimen of a mammoth breed of dogs that has ever reached this country. He is 34 inches high at the stern, 3½ feet to the top of his head when standing in an ordinary position. He is seven feet long from the tip of the nose to the end of his tail. Has his first teeth being yet a puppy only 12 months old, and has not yet stopped growing. He weighs 160 pounds.

It is not to be supposed that all Leonberg dogs will bring $3,000, as Sultan is an unusually large and beautiful representative of this strain. The answer to Mr. Cody was: "The dog is not for sale at any price," as he cannot be duplicated in this or any other country.

Train Dispatchers Head

By publishing the attached circular perhaps some of our railroad friends may see the wisdom of the act and profit by the example. Train dispatchers, as a measure of safety, should urge the adoption of something similar, only without the clause relative to "authorized students." This should be erased; for, if a student is authorized, it does not follow that his authority will prevent him from interfering with the lines, and he is liable to prove even a worse nuisance on account of his permission to practice. There is scarcely a train dispatcher in the country but what has sat on the "ragged edge" of suspense, his heart sick with fear, and his brain flooded with visions of a collision, while some idiotic, and, perhaps "authorized" student, blithely pounds away at his alphabet oblivious of all attempts on the part of the desperate dispatcher to break him. It is all well enough so long as nothing happens; but suppose that in consequence a train gets away from a station before the "orders" could be received there for it, and it rushes along and meets another on the same track. The newspapers would all wonder at the foolish perversity of the train dispatcher in attempting the oft tried problem of "passing on the same track." They would hound him long as his name lived. No excuse his could prevent it; and who would be to blame—the student, the man who authorized him, or the dispatcher who couldn't help himself? I also think the penalty for violation of the circular should have been made immediate dismissal. Suspension is not severe enough for willful violation of any rule. If rules are a necessity, it is also a necessity that they be obeyed.

U. P. R. R. Co., Telegraph Department, Superintendent's office, Omaha, Neb., January 9th, 1879

ALL OPERATORS: Your attention is called to Rule 17, viz: "No students will be allowed to practice on line or be taken into offices without permission in writing from the Superintendent of Telegraph." This rule has been and is being violated, in some cases to the great annoyance and hindrance of business. Any operator now acting in violation of this order will at once put a stop to it, and in future be governed strictly by the rule. The Superintendent of Telegraph will keep a record of the names and location of any authorized students; will enroll the same, and will not recognize applications from any others. More trouble arises from students than any other cause, and any future violation of this rule will be punished by suspension or discharge.

Approved, J. J. Dickey, Superintendent Tel.
J. T. Clark, Assist. Sup t.

Upon completion of the duty assigned him in paragraph 1, of this order, First Lieutenant Carl F. Palfrey, Corps of Engineers, Engineer Officer of the Department, will proceed to such points in Southern and South-eastern Arizona as he may deem necessary in carrying out the instructions of the Department Commander, contained in letter of this date.
